

Business Manager/ Head of Recruitment

£41,200-£46,350

Fanatical about people development, team management and have the aptitude to lead an existing and successful team into achieving greater things? A successful leader will do so by example; demonstrating exceptional client relationships and billings combined with mentoring and directing a team.

What's the role?

As a highly experienced recruitment professional you'll be adept at leading a team of superstar consultants, retaining and developing as well as attracting new talent at all levels. Setting stretching KPIs that will advance and empower the team. You will proactively play an integral part in shaping the business, taking a strategic view to drive growth by identifying and securing new business and have a contagious personality that emboldens the company values.

What training will be provided?

Your success to date is testament to the kind of person you are. Future training will be based on your requirements, ensuring your key skills in people management and financials are fresh and current.

How will my performance be reviewed?

As with all areas of the business, you'll be measured and reviewed against financial and behavioural results, which drive efficiencies and delivery. As a brand ambassador for the business, you will be proactive in talent acquisition, diversity initiatives and increasing referrals.

Interested? Send your CV to careers@connect2staff.co.uk