

Senior Recruitment Consultant

£25,750-£27,810

We truly believe in creating a recruitment centre of excellence - a place where the highest standards are consistently maintained. You, as a Senior Consultant, will hold the same views and will work tirelessly to engage your subordinates to do the same.

What's the role?

Continuing in the same vein, you'll be seen as a brand ambassador. Keeping abreast of your sector trends and building and developing key relationships with your clients and candidates.

What training will be provided?

The role of Senior Consultant will introduce you to world of profit and loss and MI (Management Information); an essential attribute relevant in any successful business environment. In addition, you'll be exposed to the first level of people management, whilst working towards a Level 4 diploma in Recruitment Management.

How will my performance be reviewed?

As with all roles, your performance will be measured and reviewed against financial and behaviour driven targets, but over and above we expect you to become and evidence a role model status. As Senior Consultant your attitude is paramount in directing junior team members.

What's this leading to?

A split path... whether you love managing and mentoring a team or just want to excel at being the best recruiter in your chosen market, a promotion to a Managing or Principle Consultant will require you to be the best of the best. Either path leads to a role within the recruitment SMT (Senior Management Team).

How do I get a promotion?

As with all steps on the career pathway, you'll be required to consistently meet your financial targets and in addition you'll be expected to demonstrate your role model status, supporting the management of the brand and defining personal & team standards.
